Objective:

The orientation program for newly admitted students at our college, held on August 10, 2023, aimed to acquaint incoming students with the academic environment, resources, and opportunities available at our institution. Specifically, the Department of Political Science sought to introduce new students of batch of 2023-2027 to the field of political science, outline the curriculum, and foster a sense of belonging within the department.

Activities and Highlights:

The orientation commenced with a welcome address by the Head of the Department, Professor Ms.Moti Deogam who provided an overview of the department's mission, academic programs, and faculty expertise. Following this, current students shared their experiences and offered practical advice on navigating academic life and extracurricular activities.

Faculty members conducted sessions on the importance of political science in today's world, career prospects in the field, and research opportunities available within the department. A tour of the department's facilities, including the library and research labs, provided students with firsthand knowledge of the resources at their disposal.

Interactive sessions encouraged students to ask questions and engage with faculty and senior students, fostering a supportive and inclusive atmosphere. The program concluded with a networking session where students could connect with peers and faculty members over refreshments.

Conclusion:

The orientation program was a resounding success, achieving its objectives of familiarizing new students with the Department of Political Science and its offerings. Feedback from participants was overwhelmingly positive, highlighting the informative sessions, friendly interactions, and valuable insights gained during the program. Moving forward, the department aims to build on this foundation of camaraderie and academic excellence, ensuring that every student feels equipped and motivated to excel in their studies and beyond.
